

Colin went quiet. He knew that what his mother said was true.

We all want what we don't have, striving to be the best and have better things. It is always important to reflect on the things you do have and not take them for granted.

